INSTRUCTIONS AND INFORMATION

Keep plants from wind and sun, wet the roots when you plant, set as deep as they were before being dug. Have your ground fine and firm. In setting by hand use a spade placed in the ground about six inches deep nearly perpendicular, push the handle from you, shake out and spread roots and place them full length in the hole back of the spade, remove the spade and fill fine dirt in and press with your foot, refill the hole and tramp on all sides. You will not damage the roots by tramping. Be sure and pack dirt firmly around the roots and also place one quarter inch of loose fine dirt on top of tramped dirt as a dust mulch.

Our test for setting right is: after the plant is set take hold of a leaf and pull; if the leaf stem breaks and leaves the plant in the ground they are all right; If the plant pulls out they are poorly set and you must firm the dirt more around the roots. This is the reason many plants die or show weak growth for if dry at planting time the air gets to the roots and dries them out before they commence to grow. If the season is wet they may come out all right, but don't take the chance. The above suggestions are very important.

Cultivate them every week and hoe as often as you can. I do not wish to confuse you with a long list of rules, follow the suggestions above and read our pamphlet on "HOW WE GROW STRAWBERRIES EVERY YEAR" and you cannot fail. However, we will be glad to answer any inquiries you may wish to make by letter.

Give your plants good care and you will succeed. If you cannot do that don't buy them.
